The other day I was flipping through a Time Magazine and came across this very interesting installation by artist Scott Hocking (photo: SEAN HEMMERLE) in an article about the renewal of detroit. I love abandoned buildings and I really like the idea of doing installations in them for people just to run across, while exploring. Plus I have a lot of family in the Motor City, so I have a place in my heart for photos of the area. On Scott Hocking's site he taken some great photos of detroit and some other cool installations which I included after the break.

cool making of the Tire Pyramid
